The people of God watched as their enemy (who had stripped them of life and homeland), suffered under the judgement of God. Jeremiah speaks into this situation and challenges his people to respond to the pain of their enemy with tenderness and compassion. This verse is a challenge to all of us who have suffered unjustly. It is and Old Testament call to demonstrate the love and mercy of God even to those who have offended us or treated us unfairly. Having lost so much at the hand of the enemy, this was a difficult challenge for the people of God. It is equally as challenging for us as well.
